Sixth Sunday of Easter

MAY 14, 2023

Acts 8:5-8,14-17; 1 Peter 3:15-18;
John 14:15-21

In Hebrew, Greek, and Latin, the word “Spirit” is onomatopoeiac; it sounds like what it means. The word really means “breath.” In Hebrew, it is ruach; in Greek, pneuma; in Latin, spiritus. The concept, of course, is that when a person is breathing, he is alive.

In former times, when a person was in a coma, a mirror or glass would be placed in front of his nose or mouth to see if there was any “breath.” If there was breath, he was alive; if not, he was dead. From this notion, the idea of an animating, life-giving, intelligent and active force came. The word (in Hebrew, Greek, and Latin) thus meant “breath”, “life” and “spirit.” Jewish tradition believed that, when the Messiah came, God’s very own life (breath, spirit) would be poured out upon all faithful believers.

This happened at Pentecost, as we have seen. But it happens also among us. In the Gospel, Jesus promised that he would not leave us orphans; he would send the Spirit of truth, the Paraclete, to remain with us and to be within us. The word “paraclete” means many things. It can mean comforter. It can mean a person who stands by you and helps you in time of need. And it can mean a “defense attorney.” Very likely, it means all these things. The Holy Spirit gives us life, stands by us, defends us, strengthens us, and consoles us.

The first reading tells of the manner in which we receive the Holy Spirit: It is the sacrament of Confirmation. The apostles at Jerusalem heard that Samaria had received the word of God; the Samaritans had been baptized, but had not yet received the Spirit. The apostles Peter and John were sent to them to impose hands on them so that they might receive the Holy Spirit.

Through the imposition of the hands of the successors of the apostles (bishops), we also receive the Holy Spirit. We are empowered to profess our faith boldly, to bear witness to the truth of the Lord, and to stand for what is right and good. We receive the Spirit’s consolation in our difficulties.

The second reading tells us to be faithful, even when we are misunderstood. Even if others ridicule us and defame us, keep standing for what is right. Keep our consciences clear. It is better to suffer for doing right than for doing wrong.

Christ did no wrong, but suffered even to death on the cross. If we are willing to suffer for him and with him, God will see us through and will vindicate us. Meanwhile, we have the consolation of the Holy Spirit who lives in our hearts.

6TH SUNDAY OF EASTER

This weekend we are choosing an option for the readings that we are all pretty certain hasn't been chosen, and if it has it has been a long time. Since the Ascension in the United States of America is always moved from its Thursday to a Sunday, the 7th Sunday of Easter readings are never read. So, the church gives us an option for those who move the Ascension to Sunday to move the second reading and the gospel from the 7th Sunday of Easter to the 6th Sunday of Easter. So, this is what we've chosen to do this year. It is probably the first time you've heard the 7th Sunday second reading and gospel ever read at mass. So hopefully that explains the readings this weekend being slightly different.

In the Acts of the Apostles, we hear about Philip preaching the gospel and the Samaritans embracing Christ. Word travels to the apostles in Jerusalem and Peter and John go up to Samaria to confirm the baptized. If you've ever wondered where a very clear image of the sacrament of confirmation is located in scripture, this is a prime example. In the sacrament of confirmation, we call down the Holy Spirit and lay hands on those to be confirmed. Most specifically in the Roman Catholic Church this is usually done by what we call an apostle today, which is a Bishop. Here are two bishops going up to do just that! And if you've noticed the readings the last couple weekends are now moving less from focusing on the resurrection and more moving towards Pentecost and the Holy Spirit.

First Peter tells us to suffer not only willingly but rejoicing in the suffering for the sake of Christ. He does make it very clear though that we are not to embrace suffering from our sins but instead suffering for the sake of Christ. This gives glory to God!

So, in the gospel of John, Jesus is talking about that glory of suffering and unifying that suffering to the will of the Father. Jesus reveals to us that he always was, always is and always will be as He states, "with the glory that I had with you before the world began." He prays that we remain one with Jesus, so that we might remain one with the Father. He then tells us of His Ascension which then leads us to the gift of Pentecost that he promised us. May our lives be so united to Christ that we give glory to God in Jesus' example. Yes, that does include joyful suffering and rejection and insult. Give glory to God by your life well lived in union with the will of the Father.

We are working on the heating and air project and hopefully we will have air conditioning very soon. We do not have the funds raised yet for these two projects but I'm hoping that people will give for the efforts of having heat and air conditioning. I apologize for the delays of the capital campaign but ask you to support these endeavors as soon as possible as we all want air this summer and heat next winter! You may see a crane soon and hopefully will work with any changes in parking that may be necessary for this project to be completed.

Most especially on this day where we celebrate our mothers, I want to wish all of you women, a happy Mother's Day. You may not think you are a mother, but as a woman, you are all called to love in a motherly way, and we all benefit from this unique source of love all women share. I want to specially wish my mother a happy Mother's Day for the amazing gift that she has been to myself and my family! If you have not met my mother, she is one spectacular lady! I want to pray for all those mothers who have lost a child no matter how grown or how small, as this is the hardest thing for a mother to experience. Know of our love and prayers! Lastly thank you to Mother Mary for her continued motherly care over the Church and each of us!
Happy Mother's Day! Thank you!

Rev. Steven A. Hannon

Evening Prayer Every Sunday

Come join us in praying Evening Prayer every Sunday at 6:30 in the Friars Choir to the left of the sanctuary. It is a beautiful, ancient prayer of the Church and we all are encouraged to participate. All materials and instruction are provided. Hope to see you there!

May is for Mary!

Traditionally, May is dedicated to honoring and seeking the intercession of Mary as the Mother of God and Mother of the Church.
