October 1, 2023 Twenty-Sixth Week of Ordinary Time

A Message from Fr. Tom Donovan:

Parables are fictional stories that Jesus uses to make a rhetorical point. This week we hear about the two sons in Matthew 21: 28ff... one who is told to go into the vineyard. The son protests, but eventually changes his mind and goes anyway. A second son receives the command and tells his father he will go, and then never manages to show up. Jesus asks, "Which of the two sons did his father's will?" to which the disciples reply, "the first". As an epilogue, Jesus tells them that there are prostitutes and tax collectors entering the Kingdom of God before them, citing that when the call for repentance came from John, these outcasts of society changed their lives, while others who thought themselves 'righteous', heard and did not change their minds.

As a parable it draws a very sharp line between the regretful son who changes his mind and obeys the father, versus the son who says the right thing, but fails to come through in the end. Is the world really so black and white? Of course not. But I hazard to guess that we all have some of each son at work in our lives— this is the pattern of all sin. One son dishonors the father in word, the other in deed... neither of them are honorable before the father. The are both "bad" sons. What is praised by Jesus though, is that one son has a change of mind and heart... a churchy term for that would be "metanoia"... where they turn from the dishonor of their words and repair their relationship with the father by doing the right thing.

This parable takes place several verses after Jesus encounters and curses an unfruitful fig tree (Matthew 21: 18-22). He finds the tree leafy, but barren, and so he curses it, causing the tree to immediately shrivel. He equates the tree with a lack of faith and calls his disciples to deeper, more effective prayer.

Taken together, the events and teachings of Jesus in this time as he approaches Jerusalem are intended to remind his disciples and the faithful of all ages the importance of faith in word and action. Of the two, it seems that Jesus is saying that action is the most important of the two, even if it comes when our words are jumbled and confused by sin. Action manifests faith in one's heart and demonstrates the honor one holds for the father. Of course it is best when words and actions harmonize in honor of God, but the Kingdom of God is certainly available to those who recognize when they fall in sin and error and turn to do the Father's will.

I think there is a subtext behind these readings—the two bad sons and the unfruitful fig tree—a subtext which is trying to teach us about prayer. We all know how important prayer is as a manifestation of our minds and spirits before God. The son who failed to go to the vineyard has all of the outward marks of respect and courtesy, calling his father "sir". As wonderful as all of those words were, promises, resolutions, and outward respect never substitutes for performance. Like a lush tree full of leaves, handsome to the eye, and well-established in the strength of its trunk and roots, if the tree is barren, bearing no fruit, it is liable to be cursed. In the same way, our prayer life is not an end to itself, but an invitation to go deeper into carrying out God's will in our lives. Perhaps only after many years of prayer are we able to root out sin or respond to a vocational call, but the work of prayer is an opening for the will of God to come alive in our minds and hearts. If our prayer is authentic and sincere... if it is 'fruitful'... when those decisive moments of our lives present themselves, prayer helps us to be of the 'right mind' to respond to God's will, even if slow or delayed, even if only after a period of refusal of the father's will. Prayer is important, but it is always attached to results in the Christian life. Actions will always speak louder than words in the Kingdom of God.

A Message from Mrs. Carol Frericks—Principal

Coming Together To Worship

On Tuesday, September 26, our Quincy Catholic Schools family came together to celebrate a city-wide Mass with Bishop Paprocki, Fr. Tom, and all of the area priests. The opportunity to worship and give glory to God together touched our hearts with many Holy Moments. Our K-8 students, all dressed in their blue St. Dominic School shirts, looked awesome and actively participated throughout the Mass by singing and praying. We were all very proud of the young man carrying the cross at the front of the procession who is one of our seventh grade students—Liam Johnson, son of Mrs. Tera Smith, our first grade teacher.

YOU CAN HELP MAKE QUINCY A SAFE HAVEN FOR THE UNBORN

A new grassroots effort is underway to limit abortion at the local level. The federal "Comstock Act" prohibits mailing and receiving abortion-inducing drugs and paraphernalia. A proposed ordinance would call for the lawful enforcement of the Comstock Act in Quincy, thus making our city a safe haven for the unborn. Because of Quincy's location on the Missouri border, our community is vulnerable to possible efforts on part of the abortion industry to establish clinics or even deploy a mobile abortion van. Let's tell them "not in our town!"

Right to Life of Adams County's website has more information about this ordinance, contact information for your public officials, and a link to an online petition:

<https://rtlac.org>

Petition signers do not have to be residents of Quincy to support a safe haven for unborn babies. Petitions will also be available at Church this week and next. Spread the word and thank you for your support!

 Thank you to everyone who advertises on our bulletin. Please support these businesses when you can.
