October 15, 2023 Twenty-Eighth Week of Ordinary Time

A Message from Fr. Tom Donovan:

Jesus continues his teaching in the 22nd Chapter of Matthew with the chief priests and the elders, proposing a two-in-one parable about a wedding feast. This week's parable announces that the leaders of Israel have refused to attend the wedding of the King's Son, and in doing so have called judgement upon themselves. This is an unnerving message when we consider that, about a generation after Jesus' resurrection, the Temple would be destroyed (which Matthew most likely witnessed before the gospel was set to paper) as if fulfilling prophecy that the King would send out his armies to destroy them and set their city on fire. In place of the invited guests, the servants were to go out into the highways and the byways to collect up "all that you might find," presumably the good and the bad alike, who respond to the King's invitation.

This first part of the parable is an accusation of the Jewish leadership who aligned themselves against Jesus, and would find themselves replaced by those who were considered 'lesser' in worthiness for the Kingdom. It is also a warning that refusal of God's invitation is terrible. Might it have been that if the Jewish people had accepted Jesus' teachings, walking in love, humility, and sacrifice, that they would not have incurred the wrath of the Roman state, who came in to crush the constant, petty rebellions taking place in their nation? We will never know. We learn that the invitation to the Son's banquet is a joyous celebration, and that the King wishes to share his joy with his people. We are called to look critically at some of those who refused to attend... they were going to their farms and business to do the work they needed to do. These are not bad people of themselves—certainly not like the murderers who mistreated the King's servants—but they are grouped with the others that refused to attend, because they did not see the "greatest good" in the banquet over their "relative goods" of everyday life and work. Finally we are reminded the loss incurred by being slow to accept of God's grace is even greater than the prospect of punishment. Those who were gathered on the highways and byways had no claims on the King's goodness, but they would receive a most precious gift that had been lost to those who considered themselves "chosen" and "elect" among the chief priests and the elders. This insight is completely valid for us today as we consider our call as baptized Christians who are called on to respond to the invitations of God's grace.

But then the second part of the parable raises the stakes even higher. One of those who found himself 'lucky' by being in the group that was welcomed graciously by the King was singled out because he was not wearing a wedding garment. How could it be that the gracious King that included this man would now turn around and exclude him because of a mere social faux pas? Maybe the servants offered a bit more scrutiny of the candidates for the feast, this man would not have faced the wrath of the King and its embarrassing effects?

There seems to be a few conclusions to consider here, as well. First, while God's grace comes to us completely freely it does impose a grave responsibility on those who are called. A person cannot live life as they did before meeting Christ. The door is certainly open for the sinner to enter into the Kingdom of God, but they must not remain a sinner when they have come through that door. The sinner must conform his life the Christ and become a saint! The second and more important lesson in this parable is that dressing respectfully for church. While it is a respectful thing to present oneself as worthily as one can when attending church, the parable is not simply about clothes. What is most important are those inner dispositions of mind and soul that we 'wear'—the garments of faith and reverence—be well-prepared as one enters into the sacred precincts, prepared for worship. Honest worship cannot take place in a heart closed off to the fullness of God's grace, to include its offer and the responsibility it imposes. It cannot take place in a heart that is unaware of its unworthiness, nor unwilling to accept the help necessary to become worthy. We are all humble beggars at the table of God's grace, but as God's grace enlightens us and takes hold of our very being, it can turn even beggars into glorious heirs of the Kingdom of God.

Seventh Grade Attends Diocesan Mission Mass

On Wednesday, October 4, our seventh-grade class traveled to our Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception in Springfield to celebrate Mission Mass with other Catholic schools from across the Diocese. Our St. Anthony Parish and St. Dominic School were recognized for our support of the Missionary Childhood Association (MCA). Bishop Paprocki celebrated the Mission Mass and invited us to take a picture together. Bishop shared with us that he appreciates our active stewardship by sharing our time, talent, and treasure. Three of our St. Dominic students were recognized for their exceptional artwork and their artwork was entered into the contest for the National Missionary Childhood Association Christmas Stamp.

YOU CAN HELP MAKE QUINCY A SAFE HAVEN FOR THE UNBORN

A new grassroots effort is underway to limit abortion at the local level. The federal “Comstock Act” prohibits mailing and receiving abortion-inducing drugs and paraphernalia. A proposed ordinance would call for the lawful enforcement of the Comstock Act in Quincy, thus making our city a safe haven for the unborn. Because of Quincy’s location on the Missouri border, our community is vulnerable to possible efforts on part of the abortion industry to establish clinics or even deploy a mobile abortion van. Let’s tell them “not in our town!”

Right to Life of Adams County’s website has more information about this ordinance, contact information for your public officials, and a link to an online petition:

<https://rtlac.org>

Petition signers do not have to be residents of Quincy to support a safe haven for unborn babies. Petitions will also be available at Church this week and next. Spread the word and thank you for your support!

Thank you to everyone who advertises on our bulletin. Please support these businesses when you can.
