Second Sunday in Ordinary Time - January 13-14, 2024

A Message from Fr. Tom Donovan:

A recent statistic reports that some 60 million adults in the United States suffer from the effects of depression in a given year... that's almost 20% of the US population! In 2022, approximately 83.4 million prescriptions, in excess of $17 billion, were written for antidepressants in the United States. There are more prescriptions written for antidepressants in the United States than for any other class of prescription medication.

My remarks are certainly not intended to criticize or question the needs and intentions of the many people who benefit from these prescription drugs. They can and do work miracles, changing lives. There is a clear medical basis for their use to balance the delicate neurochemistry affecting mood and behavior. For the most part, the experience of depression is not something that can be controlled by an individual suffering from its effects, for nobody who has experienced depression or anxiety enjoys it.

But I think that as a nation, we need to reflect on how high rates of depression and other mood disorders perhaps says something about our pursuit of happiness and, even more importantly, our need for joy. Does our faith have insight on human nature to help us understand how to promote greater mental health and resilience?

Virtue theory flowing even from pre-Christian philosophers such as Aristotle, would begin by explaining that happiness is the emotional response due to good luck, pleasure, or fortune... one is happy to have an ice cream cone, or to see one's true love, or to have a winning ticket. The opposite of happiness is sadness. By contrast, joy is a more enduring sense of happiness... one recalls that day when they got married (hopefully) with joy, even when encountering temporary sadness due to difficulties in the relationship itself or by the other circumstances in life. The Christian journey has many ups and downs, but is crowned by the eternal joy of heaven. The opposite of joy is sorrow. A rich or powerful person may have great happiness, but be completely lacking in joy, sorrowful over emptiness or pain in their lives. The greatest pain of hell will be the hopeless sorrow of losing heaven. Joy helps a person endure hardship, trial, and need when happiness is lacking.

And so the question stands, why are we so rich, yet so sad, as a nation? How much pain and suffering might be avoided by a little more love and understanding... a little more forgiveness and harmony in the world... for our children, for our family, for our neighbors, for ourselves? The human person oppressed by sin (whether on the 'giving' side or the 'receiving' side) experiences sadness which tends towards sorrow when the weight of the sin blocks him or her from a living relationship with the Creator.

That's why God revealed himself in Christ: to show his love to a fallen world... to reveal that God is love... to explain that God's way leads to total self-emptying love which holds nothing back. Sin is the opposite of love. That's why the Sacrament of Reconciliation is so necessary to set right not only the evil done by sin, but to restore God's gift of sanctifying grace received in baptism. This gift is offered in unending abundance, if we but approach in faith and renewed love.

Today's gospel takes us to the beginning of the public ministry of Jesus. Once again, John the Baptist announces the Good News, "Behold the Lamb of God!" In a world that was desperate for light, hungry for something new, and searching for joy, John's proclamation is intended to focus attention on God's profound love for his people, inviting them to live in this love. By living as disciples united in the love of Christ, a new, different kind of joy is possible. "We have found the Messiah!" We are no longer alone! We no longer live simply for ourselves, as the source and inspiration of joy within ourselves--we have found the wellspring of all that is good and holy, of all that gives meaning and hope in a world that is often shrouded in darkness. "We have seen the Lord!"

A Message from Mrs. Carol Frericks—Principal

Seventh-Grade Class Leads Morning Assembly

During the month of January, the seventh-grade class, along with their teacher, Mrs. Jennifer Dyer, will lead morning assembly each day. The class will teach our school about one of the Catholic Sacraments of Healing—Anointing of the Sick. Through this sacrament, Christians experience God’s grace to help heal people who may be suffering physically and/or spiritually. The class will also teach our school about one of the fruits of the Holy Spirit – Gentleness. This month, we will cultivate gentleness by describing how it reflects the character of Christ and enables us to live out our faith in practical ways. The fruit of the Spirit is the blessing of living a life collaborating with God. We are thankful for our seventh-grade role models!
