Third Sunday in Ordinary Time - January 20-21, 2024

A Message from Fr. Tom Donovan:

One of the highlights of the Second Vatican Council (1962-1965) is the Constitution Lumen gentium (1964), whose opening line praises “Christ, the Light of the nations”. The Church recognizes in her mission God’s plan to join all men and women in a fuller unity with Christ. This unity is found both in Christ through the divine calling to live in the mystery of God as Father, Son, and Holy Spirit, and by Christ through our union to one another in the life of the Church. In this unity as the “People of God”, we are called to follow him as “a chosen race, a royal priesthood, a holy nation”— a calling that is not different from the calling extended to Israel through Abraham and Moses and the other great fathers, prophets, and kings. The Church is the image of ancient Israel, striving to live according to the every day graces flowing from God, in particular the sacraments which intensify our covenant relationship with God.

Chapter 5 of Lumen gentium speaks of the great mystery which is reflected in this week’s readings from Jonah and the Gospel. God calls each of us to a special participation in the redemption of our own souls and the outward manifestation of God’s glory. Each life lived according to the vocation or calling of God is ordered toward growth in holiness... of being recognized as a unique gift of God’s love, of God’s presence in the world. This means, by extension, that each state of life in each walk of life tends towards perfection in charity, building up others. Each person is thus called to holiness and to become a saint. It is not simply the prerogative of those who are ordained or professed in religious vows to be holy. It is not simply those who have lead a demonstrably good life to the exclusion of others who have struggled. It is not simply those who are young and innocent or older and seeking the satisfactory completion of their lives on earth to pursue holiness. All men and women, young and old, rich and poor, morally outstanding and those, well, who are ‘still seeking the good’, all of those created in the image and likeness of God are called to holiness. When we understand this, our understanding of what it means to be “Church” and what it means to be “God’s Holy People” should change.

In the 21st century, it might become easy to see “church” as simply another item or service to be consumed. Does “church” satisfy my needs and longings? Does it help me to feel better about myself, or at least entertain me for an hour or so? Does attendance at this or that or another church represent my worldview or what I think is right and wrong? Does it make me feel comfortable, bathing me in nostalgia, or does it challenge me to be the best person I can be? Our experience of church can have some of these effects upon us, but I think Christ is calling us to even more. When we encounter the Church as a covenantal family for those who embrace our Lord’s school of discipleship, “church” might seem to be something totally different. We are not to simply live for ourselves and our own preferences, but to embrace a “royal priesthood” in that new and wonderful light in Christ.

This week we read in Mark as Christ continues to call his disciples. He chooses fishermen... those who had only modest means to make a living. They were in no way “rich” but had the ‘grit’ of being businessmen and entrepreneurs who knew the discipline of hard, back-breaking work. Jesus called them not from the wise or the wealthy, but from their enthusiasm to follow and believe in the possibility of a new world, a new kingdom: “This is the time of fulfillment. The Kingdom of God is at hand. Repent and believe in the Gospel.” (Mark 1: 14ff) We hear these words centuries later and it seems odd that they should simply leave their nets without a second thought and follow him like they did. But that must be how compelling, how beautiful the life of holiness which he held out to them appeared. It is from this small group, confined in time and space to this small band of disciples, that the universal mission of the Lord would unfold into a universal (“Catholic”) Church which continues to call all men and women into fellowship with one another and with our Lord. I pray that the Church and her members are able to make a compelling case to those we evangelize today... come, follow! May the adventure of following the Lord be a compelling invitation to who are seeking him.
