Second Sunday of Lent

FEBRUARY 25, 2024

Genesis 22:1-2,9a,10-13,15-18;

Romans 8:31b-34; Mark 9:2-10

It's irony and paradox: Our greatest triumphs often follow our worst setbacks; conversely, our glories in this life are sometimes clouded by unbearable crosses.

Our first reading shows this irony: God had chosen Abraham as his special person; he promised him a homeland. He had given him a son in his and Sarah's old age. Now, apparently, God wanted Abraham to sacrifice his son Isaac! Abraham did not understand, yet he trusted that, somehow, God would bring everything out all right.

Our second reading contains that beautiful statement that if God is for us, nothing can be against us. God did not spare his own Son. He allowed him to be delivered up just for our salvation! What an irony! God spared Abraham's son, but not his own! God loves us with an everlasting love.

The Gospel of the Second Sunday of Lent is always the story of the Transfiguration of our Lord. Mark's Gospel has some very down-to-earth images. He says that Jesus' clothes were whiter than any bleach could make them! Peter, overwhelmed at the scene, says how good it is to be there.

His remark about three booths (or tents) may be a reference to the Jewish festival of Succoth, the most joyful of Jewish days, when booths were erected from which all kinds of presents and sweets came.

Or it may be a reference of reverence, alluding to tabernacles to house the patriarchs and the Son of God. The irony is that the scene concludes with Jesus' statement about his own death. The Transfiguration was intended to strengthen the apostles for the ordeal of the cross.

We are transfigured into the image of Christ by our baptism. We don't see this image, but we must have faith that he is with us and in us. In his strength, we must carry our cross, confident of victory.

2ND SUNDAY OF LENT

This second Sunday of Lent we hear about the Transfiguration of Jesus. He reveals His glory to Peter, James, and John. On this mountain Jesus shows them a glimpse of His glory to prepare them for what is ahead. Their response is they want to stay forever. For once we even get a glimmer of God's true glory, we would want to be nowhere else. BUT we must realize that the glimpse of His glory is to strengthen us for the suffering, betrayal, passion, and death that is ahead. Be strengthened by His glory for the struggles ahead. We can't get to the resurrection without the passion and death. I am sure you have already been tempted to break your Lenten resolves. You may have already broken them, but DO NOT be discouraged. Get up and start them new. Get up and fight harder. Get up and keep disciplining yourself until you improve. The devil wants you to be discouraged and give up and quit your Lenten disciplines. Instead strengthen yourself in them. Get back up and fight again to discipline yourself. It isn't meant to be easy. Find your strength in the Lord and the discipline of these practices.

Next weekend we will have a visitor. Dr. Karen Shadle will begin the dive into our parish mission at all our weekend masses. I hope you welcome her. I hope you open yourself to the immense wisdom she has to share with us. I hope you then join us Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday nights for the mission at 7 p.m. each night. Dates again are March 3-5 at 7 p.m. Please come learn more of the beauty of the Church and the greatest treasure that is the mass and the Eucharist. We pray for the Holy Spirit to inspire her and us to open our hearts to hear Him speak. Come join us!

One last thing, I wanted to sing the praises of Mrs. Julie Radel and our faculty and staff. Our Catholic Schools week events were just amazing this year. They caught the attention of many in the diocese and I heard how excited everyone was for what our school did that week and always. It was such a joy to have people recognize the good things happening in our school through the great efforts of our principal and faculty. We are truly blessed! Thank you to them.
