From the Pastor's desk....

THANK YOU for the wonderful celebrations of last week; Confirmation and First Communion. The music, liturgy, art and environment, the different people, the enthusiasm—all added up to a very nice celebration with our children at the special time in their life. Many people shared themselves to make the faith experience a sacred time. I pray that all who came to these 2 events will have hope and encouragement as they continue to live out their lives as followers of Jesus Christ. We are truly blessed with our Catholic faith.

At the direction of the Diocesan Finance Council, the Diocese of Joliet is going to be conducting a campus assessment at our parish. The objective of this Physical Facility Audit report is to provide an understanding of the existing facilities physical condition and future required repairs. The information is intended to be used as a tool for planning potential expenditures related to maintenance, improvements, and long-term sustainability of the existing facilities. The firm of Wiss, Janney, Elstner Associates, Inc., will be contacting us soon to arrange a date for their visit. Let us pray that all will go well when they go through our buildings.

Peace.....Fr. Jeff

Marriage Hack-of-the-Month – The Stress-Reducing Conversation!

Learning to cope with external pressure is crucial to a marriage's long-term health. A simple, effective way for couples to earn deposits in their emotional bank account is to reunite at the end of the day and talk about how it went. We call this the "How was your day, dear?" conversation, or more formally, the Stress-Reducing Conversation. Many couples have the "How was your day, dear?" conversation but the talk does not help either partner relax. Instead, it escalates the stress and tension between them because they end up not feeling heard. If this sounds like you and your partner, changing your approach to these end-of-the-day talks can ensure that they help both of you unwind.
