Twentieth Sunday in Ordinary Time

AUGUST 18, 2024

Proverbs 9:1-6; Ephesians 5:15-20;
John 6:51-58

Our Gospel selection continues to be taken from the sixth chapter of the Gospel according to John. The new “sign” of manna (expected by the Jews when the Messiah came) is fulfilled in Jesus: He feeds 5,000 people. He replaces the manna of the Torah with belief in himself. And today he does something even more startling: He gives himself under the sign of bread to be the manna of our souls. He gives us the Eucharist which is truly his Body and his Blood.

Six times in this passage, Jesus makes it clear that we must truly eat his flesh and drink his blood to have life. There is no doubt whatsoever that he means this sacrament to be the reality of himself, and not merely a “symbol” or “ordinance.” “Flesh and blood” is a Semitic way of saying “the whole person.”

Catholics take Jesus and the Scriptures as they are. As difficult as it is to believe that the Lord Jesus Christ is truly present in the Eucharist, we accept it because Jesus Christ said it, and because the Scriptures teach it, and because the Church has always held it.

Many who cannot accept the teaching try all kinds of devices to show that it isn't so: They will say that this passage is not part of the original words of Jesus, but is an addition by John. (Even if this were true, we hold that the Gospel is inspired, and therefore John teaches truth.)

They also try to say that it is inconceivable that Jesus would have said this in the context of a synagogue discourse. (Even so, it is inspired Scripture.) Every single Eucharistic reference in the New Testament reflects the belief that it is truly the Body and Blood of the Lord.

Jesus Christ is our Bread of life: We must believe in him and commit our lives to him. In order to do that, we desperately need his strength which comes to us in the Eucharist, the Bread of life, which is truly his Body and his Blood, his entire Saving Person.

20TH SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME

This week we celebrated the feast of St. Maximilian Kolbe. During the office of readings, which is part of the Liturgy of the Hours the Church prays everyday, we read a portion of a letter he wrote. I want to share that letter in light of the gospel today. Division in the church, most especially surrounding the real presence of the Eucharist, is detrimental to the life of faith. Jesus is very blunt about life eternal coming through the belief and reception of His real presence. St. Maximilian wrote on living out obedience to the Church, your superiors, and the will of the Father. It's beautiful and insightful!

“The burning zeal for God’s glory that motivates you fills my heart with joy. It is sad for us to see in our own time that indifferentism in its many forms is spreading like an epidemic not only among the laity but also among religious. But God is worthy of glory beyond measure, and therefore it is of absolute and supreme importance to seek that glory with all the power of our feeble resources. Since we are mere creatures we can never return to him all that is his due.

The most resplendent manifestation of God’s glory is the salvation of souls, whom Christ redeemed by shedding his blood. To work for the salvation and sanctification of as many souls as possible, therefore, is the preeminent purpose of the apostolic life. Let me, then, say a few words that may show the way toward achieving God’s glory and the sanctification of many souls.

God, who is all-knowing and all-wise, knows best what we should do to increase his glory. Through his representatives on earth he continually reveals his will to us; thus it is obedience and obedience alone that is the sure sign to us of the divine will. A superior may, it is true, make a mistake; but it is impossible for us to be mistaken in obeying a superior’s command. The only exception to this rule is the case of a superior commanding something that in even the slightest way would contravene God’s law. Such a superior would not be conveying God’s will.

God alone is infinitely wise, holy, merciful, our Lord, Creator, and Father; he is beginning and end, wisdom and power and love; he is all. Everything other than God has value to the degree that it is referred to him, the maker of all and our own redeemer, the final end of all things. It is he who, declaring his adorable will to us through his representatives on earth, draws us to himself and whose plan is to draw others to himself through us and to join us all to himself in an ever deepening love.

Look, then, at the high dignity that by God’s mercy belongs to our state in life. Obedience raises us beyond the limits of our littleness and puts us in harmony with God’s will. In boundless wisdom and care, his will guides us to act rightly. Holding fast to that will, which no creature can thwart, we are filled with unsurpassable strength.

Obedience is the one and the only way of wisdom and prudence for us to offer glory to God. If there were another, Christ would certainly have shown it to us by word and example. Scripture, however, summed up his entire life at Nazareth in the words: He was subject to them; Scripture set obedience as the theme of the rest of his life, repeatedly declaring that he came into the world to do his Father’s will.

Let us love our loving Father with all our hearts. Let our obedience increase that love, above all when it requires us to surrender our own will. Jesus Christ crucified is our sublime guide toward growth in God’s love.

We will learn this lesson more quickly through the Immaculate Virgin, whom God has made the dispenser of his mercy. It is beyond all doubt that Mary’s will represents to us the will of God himself. By dedicating ourselves to her we become in her hands instruments of God’s mercy even as she was such an instrument in God’s hands. We should let ourselves be guided and led by Mary and rest quiet and secure in her hands. She will watch out for us, provide for us, answer our needs of body and spirit; she will dissolve all our difficulties and worries.”

What powerful words St. Maximilian Kolbe shares with us. This priest and martyr of the Church is a beautiful life lived for the Lord, as well as a horrific torturous death, which brought about his eternal life lived IN the Lord. The man he saved by offering his life instead attended the canonization of Father Kolbe. May his self sacrifice and selfless care, especially of those in the starvation bunker with him, inspire us to love the blessed mother in his example.
