Seventeenth Sunday in Ordinary Time

JULY 27, 2025

Genesis 18:20-32;

Colossians 2:12-14;

Luke 11:1-13

A general theme for today's Mass might be: "Persevere in prayer." Quite often, the theme of the Mass is summed up in the Responsorial Psalm. Today, the refrain for the psalm is: "Lord, on the day I called for help, you answered me."

The first reading is a very primitive account of "Semitic bargaining" between Abraham and God. The cities of Sodom and Gomorrah were proverbial for their corruption. Evil demands the judgment of God. But Abraham keeps reminding God how good he is. Surely God wouldn't want anyone to say that he destroyed the innocent with the guilty!

Abraham keeps bargaining and pleading. Unfortunately, there were not even ten good people in Sodom. In the Gospel, Jesus gives the Lord's Prayer as the model of all prayer. We pray that God may be recognized by all people, that his will be done, that he will give us our needs, that he will forgive us as we forgive others, and that he will protect us from the final cataclysm.

Jesus says that if we, as bad as we are, know how to give good things to our children, how much more will God give us his blessings, if we have faith. We must always keep asking; we must keep knocking on the Lord's door.

The second reading gives us confidence in our prayer: We don't ask God to hear us because of our merits. Rather, we ask him to hear us because of Christ, and because we belong to Christ.

Seventeenth Sunday in Ordinary Time, July 27, 2025

Dear Parishioners,

This weekend, we celebrate the last weekend in our month of July. I always regret this particular weekend as it is a reminder that our summer months are about to come to an end. Basically, that means school is about to begin again. I keep asking myself where did our summer go? For me personally it has been a summer of health issues. Hopefully these issues will be resolved and maybe I will get back to some normalcy in my life. No matter what challenges we might have, the thought of school beginning and summer coming to a close will not change. However, for us here at St. Peter this new school year will be a little different as we deal with the new construction. Through this next school year, we will be able to see our building project being raised from the ground and be proud of our new addition. So this new school year will be an exciting time for us.

In our first reading for today from the Book of Genesis, we find Abraham coming to the assistance of two cities called Sodom and Gomorrah. Apparently, these cities were the examples of immorality and sinfulness. And it was because of that immorality that God was threatening their total destruction. It is in these surroundings do we find our reading today. Abraham seems to try to persuade God how inappropriate it would be to destroy these cities especially if there were 50 good people living within them. Abraham's discussion with God persisted as he tries to convince God to lower the number to 45, then again to 40, then 30 and finally down to ten. And God replies, "for the sake of those ten, I will not destroy it." In this dialogue, we find a type of prayer. Abraham tries to convince God to answer his requests, and God in turn shows His abundant mercy and compassion. I just find this type of dialogue filled with honesty and forthrightness, an example of what all of our prayers should be. So often I find as human beings that we are very much like Abraham. There are things in our life that we want. And so often then our prayers become a type of bargaining with God. We are honest and forthright in our requests, and our prayers seem to desire to change God's mind. Just like Abraham attempted to do. Often our Scriptures tell us to persevere in our prayer and that is what we always try to do. I remember reading about prayer that our prayer does not necessarily change God's mind but our prayers help us see things differently and changes us. Something to always remember whenever we pray.

Once again, I want to remind you that when school begins, our Wednesday Mass for our children will start at 8:20 a.m. instead of 8:30 a.m. Our first all school Mass then will be on Wednesday, August 27. Please mark your calendars with this change. Thank you. Also, the kick-off the school year Mass will be on Sunday, August 17, at 11:00 a.m. Then the first day of school will be on Tuesday, August 19 with early dismissal at 11:30 a.m. As we begin our new school year, please read all the information concerning this new school year in light of all the construction taking place on our campus. The first full day of school will be Wednesday, August 20, for grades 1-8. The preschool and kindergarten students have special schedules. Please consult the information from the school regarding dates and times. Also, for those who use our daycare program, please consult the information from the grade school for dates whether morning or afternoon.
