A Message from Fr. Tom Donovan:

"Am I my brother's keeper?" This question haunts the fourth chapter of Genesis after Cain murders his brother, Abel. Abel's blood indeed cries out, echoing through Sacred Scripture, arriving at the situation in today's Gospel. And so, "Am I my brother's keeper?" The obvious answer is, "of course!" We are responsible for our brothers and sisters, and not only for bodily safety, but also for his or her spiritual welfare. Indeed, the prophet Ezekiel reminds us that we must warn the wicked of their ways, and in doing so save not only their life, but ours as well! (Ez 33: 7-9) Paul tells us that we are to owe each other no debt, except the debt of love (cf Rom 13:8-9). Love, of course, is not a mere feeling or emotion. In its perfection, love is the desire for the ultimate good of others. How important to realize the greatest good for another is in their spiritual welfare.

Jesus impressed upon his disciples the great lengths that one should take to reconcile with wayward brothers. Matthew 18 explains: we are to tell him his fault... we gather witnesses... we involve the church... and then, if all else fails, we treat them as Gentile or tax collector, which also obligates the disciple of Christ to treat the wayward brother with love. Love does not justify rejection of the sinner, but instead calls for an intense effort to bring the wayward one back. That is the debt of love for those who themselves know the love and mercy of Almighty God. For "Love does no evil to the neighbor; hence, love is the fulfillment of the Law." (Rom 13:10)

The Church recognizes the efforts to 'admonish the sinner' as one of the seven 'spiritual works of mercy'. Most people dislike conflict. Fewer people enjoy being corrected. It is natural to become defensive. It is hard to speak up, and doing so seems to run counter to the modern trend of not being 'judgmental'. It is sometimes hard to separate 'fraternal correction' from our own anger. But this is what we are 'on' for as followers of Christ. We are our 'brothers' keepers', and if we can save them from their faults, we win our brothers and sisters from the evil one.

Happy Labor Day! The Church has a nuanced teaching on the role of labor in the advancement of societies, which flows fundamentally from an understanding of the dignity of the human person. Humanity was placed in the Garden of Eden, not simply to lay idle and entertain themselves, but that they might cooperate with the fruitfulness of the earth and the grace of God. Adam and Eve were to be custodians of the garden, providing for its upkeep and receiving the fruits of its bounty. Indeed, only after sin entered creation did work become a test of one's will, calling forth 'sweat from the brow' and exertion of the body in order to obtain basic sustenance. In our day, work remains the expectation and norm for those who wish to participate fully in society, while sins against the dignity of human labor come from both those who (mis-)employ workers, those workers who fall short of the dignity of their calling and remuneration, and finally from those who, otherwise-able, refuse productive work, choosing to live off the welfare of others. In the midst of celebrating those who actively labor, this day may also be an opportunity to discuss the virtues taught to children in being responsible in the household and contributing to its upkeep according to their abilities, as well as the dignity of those who have retired, making sure that they have appropriate means for support and economic security after a lifetime of labor.

The Church's teaching on human work and labor recognizes, first, that human labor is an opportunity to participate in the ongoing work of creation. God's bounty continues to flow, to be shared by those who work and those in need, creating an economy, not only of finance, but of human relationships... between people, between nations, between human beings and the earth itself. Second, the Church recognizes that labor serves the human person first. Labor provides wealth allowing a medium exchange for our needs. Labor is an investment of human time and effort into projects which improve the standard of living for a society. Labor is a concrete expression of love for those, particularly family, who share the fruits of labor. When one's ability to work is curtailed, it diminishes the ability of the individual worker to fulfill these needs. Ultimately the opportunity to work is ordered to the good of the individual, not simply the good of the economy or the holders of capital. The human worker is not to be valued simply for the economic benefit they provide, but for their role in a network of human relationships.

Of similar importance, the Church also recognizes the importance, and even the duty, to rest. Rest is a vital human need that restores the individual and becomes the pause necessary to honor God. When work becomes all-consuming, it risks distorting the relationship between Creator and created.

It is from this fundamental understanding of the role of human labor in creation and society that the Church offers properly-qualified support for the rights of laborers to organize, to seek advocacy and justice, to protect workers from exploitation, to have a 'just wage' with access to health and other benefits, and to find ways to resolve conflict between labor and capital. At all times, the needs and the dignity of the vulnerable and oppressed are of primary concern of 'justice'. Justice is thus rooted in truth and relationships, not ideology. The pursuit of justice presumes the principle of subsidiarity in our dealings with others (working to resolve conflict at the lowest level of personal relationships... as in today's Gospel.) Equity in economics and social order is about opportunity, not uniform equality. And finally justice can only be part of a comprehensive moral framework that protects the right to life, the dignity of the family unit as the foundational cell of a healthy society, and an effort to encourage well-formed consciences through religious and educational formation.

A Message from Mrs. Carol Frericks—Principal

Fourth Grade Leaders Teach The Seven Sorrows of Our Lady

During the month of September at Morning Assembly, our fourth-grade leaders along with their teacher, Mrs. Katie O'Neal, will teach our school to pray for the monthly devotion of our Catholic Church, which is the Seven Sorrows of Our Lady. We will be reminded that our Blessed Mother understands and accompanies us as a source of comfort, strength, and hope as she walks with us through our own difficult times. The Seven Sorrows of Our Lady are: 1) The Prophecy of Simeon, 2) The Flight into Egypt, 3) The Loss of Jesus for Three Days, 4) Mary Meets Jesus on His way to the Cross, 5) The Crucifixion and Death of Jesus, 6) Jesus is Taken Down from the Cross, and 7) The Burial of Jesus. Our fourth-grade class also provides a lesson on the virtue of the week, including docility, moderation, obedience, and generosity.
