OCTOBER 11, 2020

Isaiah 25:6-10a; Philippians 4:12-14,19-20;
 Matthew 22:1-14 or 22: 1-10

In the Bible, heaven is often described as a great banquet, a feast in which there is plenty of food and drink for everyone. Although Isaiah knew little about heaven, he thought of paradise in these terms.

He looked forward to a time when all people would be united in peace, when there would be no death or suffering, and when everyone would have plenty of food and drink. This is what we call the "Messianic Hope." Jewish tradition thought that this hope would be fulfilled when the Messiah came.

Jesus uses a banquet parable to describe salvation or heaven. The parable was told against the Pharisees. They thought that the only ones to be saved were righteous Jews who kept all 613 precepts of the Law of Moses.

In the parable, these are the ones who refuse the invitation of the king. The king invites them again and again. This refers to the prophets whom the Lord sent. But they ignored his invitation and abused his messengers.

The king then invites all others to the banquet. This refers to the Gentiles, to us, to those who are not God's first choice. It is a teaching of our Catholic faith that God invites everyone to salvation, and that he gives sufficient grace to everyone to be saved.

The longer form of the Gospel adds a corollary to this, however. Everyone is expected to change his life. The parable says that someone was not properly dressed. He was willing to accept the invitation, but not willing to change his ways. He was cast outside.

God in his lovingkindness has invited us to salvation. But we must respond to his invitation by conversion of heart. Those who refuse will be outside with those who ignored the invitation in the first place.

In the second reading, Paul tells us that we should learn how to cope amid all circumstances of life. Somehow, God will see us through. He will supply our needs. He is the source of our strength.

28TH SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME

In Isaiah, we hear a beautiful image of God preparing a great feast for all peoples; a feast of abundance, joy, and communion. God does not prepare a small table for a select few, but a banquet where every tear is wiped away and death itself is overcome.

This reading is often used for funerals. It is a beautiful reflection on heaven. In the Gospel, Jesus uses a similar image: the kingdom of heaven is like a king who prepares a wedding feast for his son. The invitation goes out, but some refuse to come. Others become distracted by their work and daily concerns. The invitation, however, keeps going out. God desires that we come to the table, not because we have earned a place there, but because we are loved and invited.

Perhaps that is one of the great challenges of discipleship: recognizing that God's invitation is meant for us today. It is easy to become so occupied with work, responsibilities, worries, and the many demands of life that we fail to notice the feast God is already placing before us. The Eucharist is that feast in a particular and profound way. Here at the altar, Christ gathers us, feeds us, forgives us, and reminds us that we belong to something greater than ourselves.

The wedding garment in Jesus' parable can remind us that accepting the invitation also means allowing God to change the way we live. We come as we are, but we do not remain as we were. May we have the grace to hear God's invitation, to come to the feast with grateful hearts, and then to carry the joy of that feast into the world around us.

Father Ken will be in Washington D.C. chaperoning our eighth grade class trip. What a joy that our kids get to go, and Father Ken gets the opportunity to see all of these historic American sites. Pray for them all to have a wonderful time and safe trip.

-Father Arisman

Catechism of the Catholic Church paragraphs 4 and 5:

4. Quite early on, the name catechesis was given to the totality of the Church's efforts to make disciples, to help men believe that Jesus is the Son of God so that believing they might have life in his name, and to educate and instruct them in this life, thus building up the body of Christ.

5. "Catechesis is an education in the faith of children, young people and adults which includes especially the teaching of Christian doctrine imparted, generally speaking, in an organic and systematic way, with a view to initiating the hearers into the fullness of Christian life."

Pope Leo XIV Speaks on AI:

Calling for prudence, rigorous evaluation and even, at times, a slower pace in adopting AI does not mean opposing progress; instead, it is an exercise of responsible care for the human family. This need is all the more urgent given the frequent imbalance between the speed of technological growth and the slower development of awareness, norms, safeguards and institutions capable of governing its effects.
